NCKU would gladly invite all of the students including Taiwanese and foreign universities' students to join our 2019 NCKU International Summer School scheduled from August 2nd to 15th. This year, our program will feature an Introduction to a Globally Sustain Future: Perspectives from the United Nations and NCKU as the theme and offers innovative and insightful core courses to both undergraduate and postgraduate.

In light of the 17 sustainable development goals set by the United Nations (UN) as the blueprint to achieve a better and more sustainable future for all, this summer course will address a subset of these goals and the circular economy model that has resulted from the concept of sustainable development. Lectures will be given by both former UN officials and NCKU professors to cover the UN's continuing efforts in the areas of economic, social, and environmental issues, and the promotion of cooperation in sustainable development and a broad range of issues of the circular economy concerning water quality, business models, biological systems, and needed behavior changes.

The UN has been the centerpiece of world order and has played a preeminent role in the issues of international peace and security, global development, human rights, and humanitarian affairs. This year we are extremely privileged to have a series of lectures being provided by former UN officials, who will share their experiences in their respective areas of expertise.
